

Training in Communications

The objective of ITC Training is the development of speech and listening skills that enable members to become better communicators. This objective is achieved through a three-step program that includes:

- Study & Preparation: Basic tools are given to the member at the time of induction. Thoughtful study of each assignment will provide knowledge; through preparation will instill confidence. A Master Manual is provided for each member.
- Practice: Each club meeting is a setting where members can practice what they have learned in all phases of ITC Training.
- Evaluation: Evaluation is the feedback technique used to appraise individual & group performance. Listening skills are particularly important
